NBS STATEMENT

When we first announced that National Book Store was exploring a backdoor listing through Vulcan in 2012, we fully expected that the process would be straightforward. We enlisted SGV to help with the preparations. Vulcan prepared itself to accept the retail assets so that if National Book Store decided to pull the trigger, the transfer could be quickly executed. However, during the preparations, we realized that there were other factors to be considered to fully implement the intended backdoor listing.

One of these factors is the implementation of an Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system for National Book Store. In 2014, National Book Store decided to implement an ERP to support the intended rapid growth and reportorial requirements of being a listed company. In the second half of 2015, National Book Store implemented SAP as its ERP. However, the successful implementation of SAP also required a complete and fundamental transformation of the business and its supporting processes. These transformational initiatives have been going on since the implementation of SAP in 2015 and are expected to continue for the foreseeable future. They cannot be rushed and completed with the timeframe of a backdoor listing in mind. They must be allowed to happen organically and in a thoughtful manner.

Of course, apart from the implementation of SAP, there are also operational, regulatory and cost considerations that may not be consistent with National Book Store's mandate to maximize value for its shareholders at this time. These considerations are critical in evaluating the viability of a backdoor listing in relation to National Book Store's overall objectives and strategic initiatives.

Also, over the last few years, we have received a lot of inquiries regarding the final timeline of the backdoor listing, a question to which we have not been able to give a definitive answer, while the pressure to do so had been escalating. Therefore, we made the difficult decision to forego the option to backdoor through Vulcan. We believe this decision allows National Book Store to complete its transformational initiatives at its own timeline and appropriately address the operational, regulatory and cost considerations of being a listed company while allowing Vulcan to no longer be tied into this plan and find other means to create shareholder value. We believe that it would have been unfair to the minority shareholders of Vulcan to keep this option going indefinitely. On the other hand, National Book Store will explore its capital markets options at a more appropriate time.

We hope that our shareholders can trust that we will do everything in our power to generate value for them.

Thank you for your support.
